UMC Hosts Workshop Shares Information to Strengthen Local Communities

By Elizabeth Tollefson on   Friday, April 1, 2005

A workshop offered by the University of Minnesota Extension Service entitled U and Your Economy can aid business and community leaders in understanding long term economic and demographic shifts, such as changes triggered by the baby boom generation. In turn, those leaders can help to prepare their communities for the future.

Speakers include Tom Stinson, Ph.D., Minnesota state economist; and other Extension educators. Extension is the primary outreach arm of the University of Minnesota. Extension's goal is to help Minnesota communities make informed decisions by providing applied economic research and facilitating strategic planning.

The workshop will held in Sahlstrom Conference Center on the University of Minnesota Crookston (UMC) on Thursday, April 7 from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. For more information on the workshop, please contact Ryan Pesch at (888) 241-0843 or (218) 770-4398 or visit UMC's Extensions website for a complete agenda.
